#104: Jerry Gordon: Walk the Line (2018)

- Write or choose a line of poetry, lyrics, philosophy or whatever.
 - Choose a starting location and go there alone or with collaborators.
 - Read the line and then begin walking to find the first letter in the text. (e.g. If your text is, "The Now Exceeds," wander until finding a "T").
 - Document the letter photographically or some more inspired way.
 - Read the text again and walk to find the next letter.
 - Continue this process until you finish the text.
- As a final stage that can be done directly after or wherever/whenever, examine your documentation and trace the course you took in your mind. Informally or playfully consider/discuss the walk, experience, text, changes, affects, etc. Or, just go home and watch a movie.

Take it all playfully serious.
